

Under the law, corporations cannot donate to political campaigns. Yet Sinclair Broadcasting is giving a free airing to a smear "documentary" against John Kerry on 62 stations, free during prime time. This is the equivalent of tens of millions of dollars in donations to the Bush Campaign. Do your job. Enforce the law, and stop this hijacking of the airwaves for partisan purposes by a corporation whose charter states that they act in the public interest.

Additionally, Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
